Rebellion launches its champagne, in two limited editions, in collaboration with Champagne Carbon.

This exceptional vintage, 2015, is blended using a specific vinification process developed in accordance with the high standards of the Champagne house Carbon. Like the state-of-the-art mechanics incorporated into Rebellion watches, this Blanc de Blancs Grand Cru made from Chardonnay is presented in forged-carbon bottles that match its remarkable quality. A world first! Never before has a bottle been machined from this high-tech material. This tour de force was achieved after one year of research and development to prove this innovative technique essential for the production of an edition of 1,000 bottles. All stages of the manufacturing process were carried out by hand in the Carbon workshops. A traditional artisanal approach was therefore developed for the design of the bottles, the bottling of the champagne, and also the labelling.

Rebellion and Carbon have been partners for many years and have maintained a special relationship based on the same values stemming from motor racing, performance and innovation. In their quest for excellence, both share an identical taste for noble materials and avant-garde technologies. With their thirst for non-conformism, their know-how is therefore bottled for the rebels who follow a non-conventional lifestyle.

"Rebellion is proud to be associated with Carbon to present its first 2015 vintage champagne. With our common ability to shake up the codes of our profession, this vintage marries, to our greatest satisfaction, the best of our respective universes to satisfy demanding amateurs", comments Calim Bouhadra, CEO of Rebellion Corporation.

"Rebellion promotes our know-how through innovative bottles made of forged carbon. The Carbon house is happy to provide a high quality champagne with this first vintage", enthuses Alexandre Mea, CEO of Carbon.
